Hilma af Klint
A Biography
Julia Voss
Translated by Anne Posten
“Voss’s dazzling and timely biography of Hilma af Klint explores not only the life of this extraordinary artist but highlights the important contributions of both mysticism and women artists—so long excluded from the art-historical canon—to the story of modern art. I couldn’t put it down.” —Jennifer Higgie, author of The Mirror and the Palette
“The indispensable resource for anyone interested in pioneering artist Hilma af Klint. . . . Voss reveals a Hilma we did not know, including a gender fluidity that underlies many of her motifs.”—Linda Henderson, University of Texas at Austin

Phenomena
Doppelmayr’s Celestial Atlas
Giles Sparrow
Foreword by Martin Rees
The expansive and intricate Atlas Coelestis, created by Johann Doppelmayr in 1742, set out to record everything known about astronomy at the time, covering constellations, planets, moons, comets, and more, all rendered in exquisite detail. This oversized book presents 30 beautifully illustrated and richly annotated plates from Doppelmayr’s atlas, accompanied by expert analysis from astronomer Giles Sparrow. Through stunning illustrations, historical notes, and scientific explanations, Phenomena creates a spectacular handbook to the heavens.

From the Seashore to the Seafloor
An Illustrated Tour of Sandy Beaches, Kelp Forests, Coral Reefs, and Life in the Ocean’s Depths
Janet Voight and Peggy Macnamara
“Look upon these majesties of marine life, read about them, learn something about them—and be grateful you were born on the blue planet. . . . The minds and the eyes of these two journeying women will take you places you haven’t been.”—David Quammen

Trees
From Root to Leaf
Paul Smith
Foreword by Robert Macfarlane
“Smith’s stunning prose and fabulous illustrations make his book, Trees, an essential volume for both tree lovers and tree professionals. He not only celebrates trees, but also interweaves amazing facts and essential biology about these essential woody denizens of our planet. From seeds to leaves and form, bark, wood, flowers, and fruits, the book is an inspirational journey through the stories of diverse trees, and their impact on humankind. I loved it!”—Margaret Lowman, Executive Director, TREE Foundation

My Three Dads
Patriarchy on the Great Plains
Jessa Crispin

“Crispin’s erudite analysis and biting wit make this multifaceted history unmissable. Searing and intelligent, this delivers on all counts.”—Publishers Weekly

“By challenging a host of societal assumptions about family, identity, gender, religion, and politics, the author upends an array of notions about American exceptionalism. A fascinating and engaging cultural study.”—Kirkus

Victories Never Last
Reading and Caregiving in a Time of Plague
Robert Zaretsky

“It’s magical how much Zaretsky covers while zigzagging swiftly and deftly through the literature, history, and philosophy of plagues. Interludes about his volunteer work in a nursing home add a real-life, charming, absurdist atmosphere to the big ideas of thinkers like Marcus Aurelius or Albert Camus. For those of us who’ve been trying to face and process what we’ve just gone through, Victories Never Last serves to kick our thinking up a notch. His writing is a model of scholarship at its finest: lucid, learned, down-to-earth, and honest.”—Scott Samuelson, author of Seven Ways of Looking at Pointless Suffering

The Nutmeg’s Curse
Parables for a Planet in Crisis
Amitav Ghosh

“Illuminating. . . . [Ghosh] wants us to reckon with broader structures of power, involving ‘the physical subjugation of people and territory,’ and, crucially, the ‘idea of conquest, as a process of extraction.’ The world-as-resource perspective not only depletes our environment of the raw materials we seek; it ultimately depletes it of meaning.”—New Yorker

2022 336 p. 6 x 9 6 halftones

On Not Knowing
How to Love and Other Essays
Emily Ogden

“Right now, our political and aesthetic discourse seems less a genuine conversation than a competition of mutually exclusive certainties. How wonderful it is to read Ogden, a writer who says that ‘the question mark’s business with me will never be finished’ and means it.”—Atlantic

“On Not Knowing is many things: a brilliant close reading of motherhood; a tonic counter to ‘self-help’ books; an intimate, unsentimental tribute to children; and an extended riff on how we make meaning with language. What is most extraordinary is how Ogden takes a surface moment of the everyday and deftly turns and deepens it until she arrives at a space of luminous complexity.”—Dana Spiotta, author of Wayward: A Novel

Audubon at Sea
The Coastal & Transatlantic Adventures of John James Audubon
Edited by Christoph Irmscher and Richard J. King

“While of course best-known for his definitive depictions of American birdlife, John James Audubon also wrote about his extensive travels at sea, from the American South to the shores of England and the frozen Canadian North. This is as much an ecological account as a narrative of his travels, however, with Audubon’s concerns for the natural world still relevant today.”—Bookseller

Black Paper
Writing in a Dark Time
Teju Cole

“In essays ranging on topics from Edward Said to the US–Mexico border to Black Panther, Cole interrogates what it means to bear witness in a turbulent world.”—New York Times

“In this erudite collection of observations written over the past three years, art historian Cole meditates on art, identity, politics, and literature to decipher ‘the fractured moment in our history.’”—Publishers Weekly

The Education of Betsey Stockton
An Odyssey of Slavery and Freedom
Gregory Nobles
“Nobles’ biography of Betsey Stockton returns to us an astonishing heroine of early America. Born into slavery in New Jersey, Stockton gains freedom, literacy, and a new life as a Christian missionary and teacher in Hawai‘i before her return to eastern North America as a teacher and, in Princeton, a founder of the town’s First Presbyterian Church of Color and a pillar of the community. Nobles’ page-turning narrative greatly expands our understanding of the ‘freedom dreams’ of African Americans in the pre-Civil War United States.”—Leslie M. Harris, author of In the Shadow of Slavery: African Americans in New York City, 1626–1863
2022 288 p. 6 x 9 halftones

The Nation That Never Was Reconstructing America’s Story
Kermit Roosevelt III
“Astute textual analysis, careful historical research, and a deep commitment to social justice make this an inspiring reexamination of America’s past.”—Publishers Weekly
“Roosevelt proposes that we . . . attempt a national enterprise to atone for our original sin through targeted investment in Black and other marginalized communities, which ‘offers the possibility of a real transformation.’ . . . [The book is] a novel way of reading our founding documents and revising them as both law- and nation-building myths.”—Kirkus
2022 256 p. 6 x 9

Black in White Space
The Enduring Impact of Color in Everyday Life
Elijah Anderson
“A must-read for anyone seeking a lucid discussion of American race relations.”—William Julius Wilson, Harvard University
“Black in White Space is an elegantly composed, brilliant, and intimate look at how Black people are seen in and navigate through predominantly white spaces. This will be an extremely useful text—particularly as we grapple with what diversity means in its substance as an aspiration.”—Imani Perry, Princeton University
2022 272 p. 6 x 9

City of Newsmen
Public Lies and Professional Secrets in Cold War Washington
Kathryn J. McGarr
“With crisp, fluent prose and an eye for telling detail and quotations, McGarr tells an engaging story of the Washington press during a critical time in world affairs. She sets up her tale with vivid portraits of the early capital, the evolution of the gentlemen’s club of foreign correspondents, and their close but contentious relations with US officials through the early Cold War. McGarr’s archival work has netted a wealth of revealing vignettes and quotations, smoothly woven together in her crisp writing.”—Robert Weisbrot, coauthor of The Liberal Hour: Washington and the Politics of Change during the 1960s
2022 304 p. 6 x 9 halftones

A Conspiratorial Life
Robert Welch, the John Birch Society, and the Revolution of American Conservatism
Edward H. Miller
“Traces the origins and history of the John Birch Society and, in the process, provides historical perspective on the far-right populism of the Trump era. . . . On the whole, as Miller’s book makes clear, Republican politicians of the early 1960s were more eager to court the John Birch Society than to distance themselves from it.”—New York Review of Books
“Offers a good angle from which to appraise the fractured state of American conservatism.”—Financial Times

Pulp Empire
The Secret History of Comic Book Imperialism
Paul S. Hirsch
“As Hirsch outlines in Pulp Empire, comics have always been entwined with capitalism, race, and foreign policy. . . . Hirsch makes an important inroad into not only understanding the cultural politics of the Cold War, but in the forces that led to the omnipresence of comic book motifs in the present.”—The Progressive

Who Is the City For?
Architecture, Equity, and the Public Realm in Chicago
Blair Kamin
Photography by Lee Bey

“No one can match Blair Kamin and Lee Bey’s sustained scrutiny and deep understanding of Chicago architecture over the last three decades and beyond. . . . Who Is the City For? is compelling reading for anyone interested not just in Chicago, but in significant trends—both good and bad—in contemporary architecture and city life more broadly.”—Carl Smith, author of The Plan of Chicago

Every Goddamn Day
A Highly Selective, Definitely Opinionated, and Alternatingly Humorous and Heartbreaking Historical Tour of Chicago
Neil Steinberg

Every day in Chicago is a day to remember, from the dedication of the Pablo Picasso sculpture downtown on August 15, to the arrest of Rod Blagojevich at his Ravenswood home on December 9, or a fire that possibly involved a cow on October 8. In Every Goddamn Day, acerbic Chicago Sun-Times columnist Neil Steinberg provides 366 captivating daily readings in Chicago history, creating a compelling narrative that can be read at a sitting or in a yearlong series of daily doses.

The Beat Cop
Chicago’s Chief O’Neill and the Creation of Irish Music
Michael O’Malley

“Five million Irish people came to the US in the century following 1820. Without the efforts of police chief Francis O’Neill, much of their musical heritage might have vanished. As Chicago’s ‘beat cop’—in O’Malley’s wonderfully felicitous phrase—Chief O’Neill uncovered, traced, and classified Irish folk music in America, preserving but also inventing a unique tradition. Vivid, eloquent, and highly engaging, The Beat Cop sparkles with insights about immigration, community, and popular culture.”

—Kevin Kenny, author of The American Irish: A History

Making the Second Ghetto
Race and Housing in Chicago, 1940–1960
Arnold R. Hirsch

“Hirsch’s deeply transformational book lays out how a perfect storm of racism, redlining, and public policies formed Chicago and other American cities. If you want to understand what came after the 1960s, you have to understand what came before them. . . . Every sector of the city—its business interests, its government, its people, and sometimes even its churches—have employed particular weaponry to effect a single goal: the subjugation of Black people. It hasn’t changed.”—Ta-Nehisi Coates, author of We Were Eight Years In Power

Foxconned
Imaginary Jobs, Bulldozed Homes, and the Sacking of Local Government
Lawrence Tabak

“A gripping and necessary postmortem on one of the biggest economic development fiascos of our time. Tabak applies a critical lens on the enormous quasi-public industry of business recruitment and how it can be exploitative—shockingly so—especially in job-starved postindustrial regions.”—Angie Schmitt, author of Right of Way: Race, Class, and the Silent Epidemic of Pedestrian Deaths in America

Redefining Geek
Bias and the Five Hidden Habits of Tech-Savvy Teens
Cassidy Puckett

“Essential. . . . Puckett draws on a deep data set to redefine what it means to be competent with technology, bust a pile of myths much in need of busting, and offer clear steps for helping students develop the habits they need to succeed in life, work, and play. This book will guide how we tackle digital inequality and support the learning process of young people of all races, ethnicities, and genders for years to come.”—John Palfrey, president, John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation

The Book of Minds
How to Understand Ourselves and Other Beings, from Animals to AI to Aliens
Philip Ball

“A journey into the concept of the mind, mixing neurology, philosophy, technology, and other disciplines. Although everyone has a mind, few experts agree on its makeup. Ball delivers a fine investigation of the possibilities. . . . Many of his topics are among the hottest in neuroscience today, explored by scores of academics and popularizers such as Oliver Sacks, Antonio Damasio, and Daniel Dennett. Building on their theories and others, Ball makes a useful addition to the literature. A difficult subject lucidly illuminated, if not fully explained.”—Kirkus

Seeing Silicon Valley
Life inside a Fraying America
Mary Beth Meehan and Fred Turner

“In ultra-rich Silicon Valley, [Meehan’s] camera captures those struggling to survive.”—Washington Post

“It is a Silicon Valley rarely described and never shown that photographer Mary Beth Meehan sought to document. . . . Without descending into pathos, she reveals the striking contrasts between the world of start-ups and that in which their employees live. . . . But underneath, Meehan also depicts another, more subtle dissonance—between the way Silicon Valley sees itself, and the way it really is.”—Le Monde

The Modern Myths
Adventures in the Machinery of the Popular Imagination
Philip Ball

“[Ball] makes a persuasive case that myth isn’t gone but can be found in stories closer to our current obsessions such as science and technology, globalization and individual psychology. . . . His provocations to debate are among the book’s many pleasures.”
—Wall Street Journal

“Ball does an impressive job with the literary histories behind each iconic title, assembling a set of origin stories rich in cultural history and imagination.”—New York Times Book Review

Power in the Wild
The Subtle and Not-So-Subtle Ways Animals Strive for Control over Others
Lee Alan Dugatkin
"A scrupulously scientific but highly accessible tour of power's manifestations among caribou, bonobos, deer, dolphins, hyenas, meerkats, mice, mongooses—(mongoose?)—and those are just some of the mammals. ... True to its title, Power in the Wild doesn't address Homo sapiens. But the anthropocentrically inclined will find that the power dynamics of nonhuman animals offer plenty of insight into our own, distorted a bit as in a funhouse mirror. For the open-minded, Dugatkin's depiction of power in the wild yields a stunningly provocative reflection."—Wall Street Journal

Platypus Matters
The Extraordinary Story of Australian Mammals
Jack Ashby
"Ashby reveals marvelous creatures, and the mysteries and myths surrounding them."—BBC Wildlife
"Ashby makes the case that Australia's wildlife is not a collection of oddities and species that can kill you. ... He explores how this traditional narrative about Australia's native animals arose, how it is incorrect, and why it matters. Some of the species met along the way, including echidnas, wombats, Tasmanian devils, and scaly-tailed possums, leave lovely impressions that will be lasting portrayals. Both serious and fun, Platypus Matters is compelling reading."—Kristofer M. Helgen, chief scientist and director, Australian Museum Research Institute

Red Leviathan
The Secret History of Soviet Whaling
Ryan Tucker Jones
"American environmentalists are inclined to see the United States' Cold War opponent as a villain. Telling the story of the Soviet role in modern whaling, Jones complicates this perspective by acknowledging the Soviets’ disproportionate impact while also looking beyond it. ... From the first attempts at whaling in Peter's Russia to the protest era and pushback against whaling by Greenpeace and the Sea Shepherds, Red Leviathan combines thorough research and great storytelling to fill a necessary gap in the history of global whaling."—Jakobina K. What’s Eating the Universe?
And Other Cosmic Questions
Paul Davies
"Brilliant. You won’t find a clearer, more engaging guide to what we know (or would like to know) about the universe and how it is put together."—Bill Bryson, author of A Short History of Nearly Everything
"A whirlwind tour through the vastness of space and the innermost recesses of subatomic matter. ... Like the immense void that gapes across the sky in the direction of the constellation Eridanus, a yawning emptiness that some have suggested may be the sign of another universe set to gobble up our own, the mysteries of space are so vast and so strange that we cannot but be amazed."—Wall Street Journal

A Fan’s Life
The Agony of Victory and the Thrill of Defeat
Paul Campos
“A terrific account of the experience of the engaged sports fan. Campos is deeply and broadly informed about sports, of course, but he also thoughtfully and authoritatively weaves in politics, music, economics, criminal justice, and race relations. He consistently and effectively reminds readers of how changes in media and communication have inflected the contemporary fan experience, without ever letting us forget the personal story at this book’s core.”—David Henkin, author of The Week: A History of the Unnatural Rhythms That Made Us Who We Are

Get in the Game
An Interactive Introduction to Sports Analytics
Tim Chartier
“Get in the Game is a playful and welcoming introduction to the interplay between sports and math. Assuming no math and using only a coin and a die, Chartier artfully illustrates why sports analytics matter through the simplest of questions: how do we measure greatness? This is a must-read for anyone curious about the analytical side of sport.”—John Urschel, former NFL offensive lineman, co-author of Mind and Matter: A Life in Math and Football

Fit Nation
The Gains and Pains of America’s Exercise Obsession
Natalia Mehlman Petrzela
“Petrzela has brought us an intellectually rich and delightfully informative history of how people in the United States have understood, obsessed over, and changed their bodies. In a thorough look at the trends, characters, and ideologies that have informed the body politic and the politics of bodies, Petrzela helps us recognize the weight of constant messaging from industries trying to convince the public to seek perfection endlessly. An important and enjoyable read.”—Marcia Chatelain, author of Pulitzer Prize-winning Franchise: The Golden Arches in Black America

Tinker to Evers to Chance
The Chicago Cubs and the Dawn of Modern America

In Praise of the Bicycle
Marc Augé
“In this playful (and playfully illustrated) little book, deftly translated by Teresa Fagan, a French anthropologist expounds on his love of cycling. On a bicycle, he asserts, ‘you become someone else, and yet you are yourself as never before.’ . . . [The bicycle] is a tool for the realization of humanism. . . . His argument is fast and incautious; he’s freewheeling and having great fun.”—New York Times Book Review

Dangerous Fun
The Social Lives of Big Wave Surfers
Ugo Corte

“The North Shore of O‘ahu is the Vatican of surfing: small in area but densely packed with lore, power, secrets, and great waves. Ugo Corte goes straight to the heart of one of its abiding mysteries—the subculture within the subculture—the exceptional people who ride very big waves. He illuminates surfers’ mentality, diversity, self-expression, social bonds, and rituals with dramatic narrative and extensive interviews.”—William Finnegan, author of Barbarian Days

Doping
A Sporting History
April Henning and Paul Dimeo

“A highly accessible and thoroughly researched historical account of doping and anti-doping in elite sport. Doping: A Sporting History demonstrates why the ‘cops and robbers’ account of doping, in which seemingly morally justified anti-doping crusaders are pitted against athletic ‘cheats,’ is both false and misleading. The authors make recommendations for genuine reforms that consider the lives of the most important members of elite sport—the athletes themselves.”—Ian Ritchie, coauthor of Fastest, Highest, Strongest: A Critique of High-Performance Sport

Bulls Markets
Chicago’s Basketball Business and the New Inequality
Sean Dinces

“The role of sports teams in revitalizing cities is too often taken for granted by sportswriters and urban commentators alike. In Bulls Markets, Dinces does the invaluable work of taking a no-holds-barred look at what the Michael Jordan Bulls meant to Chicago—both economically and emotionally—to determine once and for all what the city gained from a championship and which segment of a changing city reaped these spoils.”—Neil deMause, author of Field of Schemes

Defying Hitler
The White Rose Pamphlets
Alexandra Lloyd

*The White Rose (die Weiße Rose) was the name given to a resistance circle at the University of Munich in the early 1940s whose members secretly wrote and distributed anti-Nazi pamphlets. At its heart were undergraduate students, all of whom were executed in 1943 by the Nazi regime. Defying Hitler presents the White Rose resistance pamphlets in full, translated by modern-day students at the University of Oxford. Accompanied by sketches, photos, and letters, this volume sets the resistance texts within their political and historical context and commemorates the bravery of the White Rose.*

D-Day Through French Eyes
Normandy 1944
Mary Louise Roberts

“A moving examination of how French civilians experienced the fighting.”—Telegraph

“Roberts uses the diaries and memoirs of French civilians to narrate a history of the French at D-Day that has for too long been occulted by the mythology of the allied landing. . . . The switch of point of view from American to French is an exercise in empathy that renews history at the core. . . A gripping and artful book.”—Alice Kaplan, author of Dreaming in French

Hitler’s Tyranny
A History in Ten Chapters
Ralf Georg Reuth

Hitler’s tyranny is still difficult to understand today. In this book, Reuth asks several key questions: Was anti-Semitism more pronounced in Germany than elsewhere? Was Versailles really responsible for Hitler’s rise and why did the Germans follow a racial fanatic like him? How did his war differ from all others before it? Reuth offers a fascinating counterpoint to much recent scholarship, showing that Hitler was not the consequence of the depths of German history, but the result of chance, deception, and seduction.

Rommel
The End of a Legend
Ralf Georg Reuth

“The legend of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel—the Desert Fox—is threefold: he was a simple soldier who did his duty and knew nothing of Nazism; he was a commander of superlative talent who ran rings around the British in North Africa in 1941-42; he was a leader in resistance to Hitler and gave his life to the cause after the failure of the July 1944 plot. In this lucid, exemplary volume, Reuth shows that all three of these assumptions are false . . . and reveals the truth in a brilliant book.”—Independent

Shadowland
The Story of Germany Told by Its Prisoners
Sarah Colvin
Shadowland tells the sometimes inspiring, often painful stories of Germany’s prisoners, and thereby shines new light on Germany itself. The story begins at the end of the Second World War, in a defeated country on the edge of collapse. While East Germany developed detention facilities for its secret police, West Germany passed prison reform laws, which erected, in the words of a prisoner, “little asbestos walls in Hell.” Shadowland is Germany as seen through the lives, experiences, triumphs, and tragedies of its lowest citizens.

Napoleon at Peace
How to End a Revolution
William Doyle
The French Revolution facilitated the rise of Napoleon Bonaparte, but after gaining power he knew that his first task was to end it. In this book William Doyle describes how he did so, beginning with the three large issues that had destabilized revolutionary France: war, religion, and monarchy. Doyle shows how, as First Consul of the Republic, Napoleon resolved these issues: first by winning the war, then by forging peace with the Church, and finally by making himself a monarch. Napoleon at Peace ends by discussing Napoleon’s one great failure—his attempt to restore the colonial empire destroyed by war and slave rebellion.

“Westward the Course of Empire”
Exploring and Settling the American West
J. C. McElveen, Jr.

In the nineteenth century, the exploration and settlement of the West exploded. During the 58 years between the Louisiana Purchase and the Civil War, the United States expanded from the Mississippi River to the Pacific Ocean, and, in the far West, from the 32nd Parallel to the 49th. By the late 1850s, almost all of these areas had been mapped and explored. Among the many iconic maps featured in this book is Lewis and Clark’s map of the Northwest. Published in 1814, it remained the standard against which all mapping of that part of North America was measured for decades.

How to Make a Vaccine
An Essential Guide for COVID-19 and Beyond
John Rhodes
“A go-to guide for non-experts on vaccine development.”—Lancet
“At a time when online searches for books on vaccines are more likely to turn up misinformation than reliable literature, How to Make a Vaccine is a required primer that demystifies concepts and gives an informative overview of how vaccines are developed and how they work. An essential guide indeed.”—The Inquisitive Biologist

Rethinking Hypothyroidism
Why Treatment Must Change and What Patients Can Do
Antonio C. Bianco, MD
“A true ‘whodunit’—a famous scientist discovers we have it all wrong and offers a primer on the contrarian thinking at the heart of scientific discovery.”—David A. Ansell, MD, author of The Death Gap: How Inequality Kills “Rethinking Hypothyroidism validates what many patients knew, but the science was not confirming before. It will open the door for all to consider alternate treatments.”—Philip James, patient advocate, creator and host of “Doctor Thyroid”

In the Name of Plants
From Attenborough to Washington, the People behind Plant Names
Sandra Knapp

In this lush and lively book, celebrated botanist Sandra Knapp explores the people whose names have been immortalized in plant genera, presenting little-known stories about both the featured plants and their eponyms alongside photographs and botanical drawings. Knapp’s subjects range from Charles Darwin’s grandfather, Erasmus Darwin (Darwinia), to US founding figures like George Washington (Washingtonia) and Benjamin Franklin (Frankinia). Including granular details on the taxonomy and habitats for 30 plants alongside its vibrant illustrations, this book is sure to entertain and enlighten any plant fan.

Chasing Plants
Journeys with a Botanist through Rainforests, Swamps, and Mountains
Chris Thorogood

“Botanist Thorogood combines his two lifelong passions, painting and plants, in this marvelous account of his travels around the globe. . . . The realistic oil paintings that appear throughout are a testament to Thorogood’s careful attention to the flora, and the vivid descriptions will make readers feel like they’re on the hunt with him. This will be catnip for plant lovers.”—Publishers Weekly

Tropical Arctic
Lost Plants, Future Climates, and the Discovery of Ancient Greenland
Jennifer McElwain, Marlene Hill Donnelly, and Ian Glasspool

“Ice-covered Greenland was named misleadingly by tenth-century Norse settlers hoping to attract others. But at the time of the dinosaurs, the label would have been accurate, judging from the fossilized plants intricately reconstructed and pictured in this fascinating study by palaeobotanists Jennifer McElwain and Ian Glasspool, with scientific illustrator Marlene Donnelly. They warn that current greenhouse-gas emissions are becoming comparable in impact to the volcanic emissions that triggered the collapse of Triassic Greenland’s flora.”—Nature

Great Trees of Britain and Ireland
60 of the Best Ancient Avenues, Forests and Trees to Visit
Tony Hall

A wealth of ancient trees, avenues, and forests grow in Britain and Ireland. Boasting Europe’s largest number of ancient oaks and yews, Britain and Ireland are home to forests that can be traced back for centuries, feature amazing avenues lined with trees hundreds of years old, and include some truly majestic individual trees. In this book, Kew expert Tony Hall profiles 60 amazing ancient trees, avenues and forests—from huge Scots pines to the ‘Dark Hedges’ featured in Game of Thrones—and reveals their locations across Britain and Ireland. This visually stunning compendium is a must for tree lovers and anyone planning a trip to the British Isles.

Pow! Right in the Eye!

Thirty Years behind the Scenes of Modern French Painting

Berthe Weill

"Now published in English for the first time, Weill’s fast-paced and punchy account of her gallery’s first 25 years of exhibitions is a who’s who of emerging artists in early-twentieth century Paris, the collectors who bought their work, and how much they paid. . . . She paints a clear portrait of how modern masters like Metzinger and Matisse, alongside lesser known painters like Emilie Charmy, shook up modern art and modern culture even before there was a market for their work."—Booklist

Vincent’s Books

Van Gogh and the Writers Who Inspired Him

Mariella Guzzoni

"Vincent van Gogh’s letters are almost as wonderful as his paintings and in one of them he writes, ‘I have a more or less irresistible passion for books.’ Guzzoni traces that passion in the beautifully designed Vincent’s Books. If you need a gift for a book or art lover, this is it."—Washington Post

Van Gogh. Self-Portraits

"Spanning Van Gogh’s entire career, this volume explores his self-portraits, analyzing the artist’s self-representation in context to reveal the role it plays in his oeuvre.

Matisse

The Books

Louise Rogers Lalaurie

"These books-as-works-of-art are both a running commentary upon Matisse himself, the ever evolving, ever surprising image-maker, and an extraordinarily vivid series of critical responses to words that are often so rich and elusive in their meanings."—Hyperallergic

Florine Stettheimer

A Biography

Barbara Bloemink

"Bloemink is again making the case for Stettheimer as a fascinating, and crucial, figure of art history, one deserving a place in the pantheon of American modernists. In a hefty new biography, Stettheimer’s life and work—which, in addition to her paintings, include acerbic poems, ornate furniture and frames, and costumes and set designs—unfold in unprecedented detail."—Vogue

Mina Loy

Apology of Genius

Mary Ann Caws

"Much like its subject, Mina Loy: Apology of Genius runs on restlessness, fervor, and open-endedness. With it, Caws has gifted us yet another stirring assemblage that teaches and excites, this time blissfully dilating on a singularly complex, singularly wild figure at the heart of the modern and so much else."—Maggie Nelson, author of The Argonauts
Flowers!
In the Art of the 20th and 21st Centuries

Edited by Regina Selter and Stefanie Weißhorn-Ponert

This volume explores the motif of flowers in art, featuring more than 120 works in a variety of media, including painting, photography, video, and installation. The book shows the changes in meaning and the topicality of flowers from the study of color and form via sociopolitical and gender-specific questions to reflections on existence, the environment, and new technologies. This lavishly illustrated book also offers an art-historical review and essays on the political dimensions and everyday culture of our dealings with flowers.

Edward Munch

Masterpieces from Bergen

Edited by Barnaby Wright

This important publication showcases eighteen masterworks by Edvard Munch (1863–1944) along with contributions from several leading experts. The works span the most significant part of Munch’s artistic development, including seminal paintings from Munch’s early “realist” phase of the 1880s as well as his famous Frieze of Life series. This collection demonstrates how Munch’s powerful use of color and form marked him as one of the most radical painters at the turn of the twentieth century.

Sherlock Holmes in 221 Objects

From the Collection of Glen S. Miranker

Cathy Miranker and Glen Miranker

As one of the most beloved characters in the English language, Sherlock Holmes sometimes seems to have a life of his own, one that leaps beyond the pages of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle’s mystery stories. Sherlock Holmes in 221 Objects aims its magnifying glass toward a host of overlooked extra-literary objects, bringing to light exhibits ranging from original manuscripts, handwritten letters, business correspondence, vintage book art, pirated editions, and more—all presented in thematic clusters that highlight their significance to the case at hand.

Edward Hopper

Inner and Outer Worlds

Edited by Stefan Koja

Edward Hopper (1882–1967) is one of the most renowned American artists of the twentieth century. Through his distinctive scenes of everyday life, he opened a window into his own emotions and thoughts. This publication offers a fresh look at Hopper’s oeuvre and places it in dialogue with works by the Old Masters, such as Johannes Vermeer. Although their paintings were created almost 300 years apart and in different locations and cultural settings, they reveal intriguing similarities that go beyond resonant compositional aspects.

Textures

The History and Art of Black Hair

Edited by Tameka Ellington and Joseph L. Underwood

Textures synthesizes research in history, fashion, art, and visual culture to reassess the “hair story” of peoples of African descent. Combs, products, and implements from the collection of hair pioneer Wilkie Morrow are paired here with masterworks from artists like Sonya Clark, Lorna Simpson, Mickalene Thomas, and Alison Saar. Exploring topics such as the preferential treatment of straight hair, the social hierarchies of skin, and the power and politics of display, Textures is a lavishly illustrated exploration of Black hair and its important, complicated place in the history of African American life and culture.

Lucky Wreck
Poems
Ada Limón

From the recently appointed Poet Laureate of the United States, this collection traces the excitement of plans and the necessary swerving detours we must take when those plans fail. Celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of Limón’s award-winning debut, this edition includes a new introduction by the poet.

“Risky, haunting, wonderfully unexpected. . . . Like many of the best writers, [Limón] is funny and serious at the same time, the depths and heights are one: lucky wreck!”—Jean Valentine

The Last Writings of Thomas S. Kuhn
Incommensurability in Science

Thomas S. Kuhn

“Combining Kuhn’s unfinished last book, The Plural- ity of Worlds, with two related works not previously available in English, and a substantial and illumi- nating introduction by editor Bojana Mladenović, The Last Writings of Thomas S. Kuhn will be received as an absolute gem by philosophers of science, as well as by the wide swath of academics across the social sciences and humanities who revere Kuhn.”—Cheryl Misak, University of Toronto

Street Scriptures
Between God and Hip-Hop

Alejandro Nava

“With this majestic study, Nava reclaims ‘the streets’ as a living, breathing text, through which black and brown youth transmute everyday terror into spiri- tual beauty. . . . By placing academic theology and urban hip-hop culture side by side, Nava’s work has the potential to usher both into a more liberating future.”—Onaje X. O. The Complete Works
Handbook, Discourses, and Fragments

Epictetus

Edited and translated by Robin Waterfield

Epictetus is now considered the most important exponent of Stoicism, and his surviving work com- prises a series of impassioned discourses, delivered live and recorded by his student Arrian, and the Handbook, Arrian’s own take on the heart of Epicte- tatus’s teaching. Edited and translated by renowned scholar Robin Waterfield, this book collects the complete works of Epictetus, bringing to modern readers his insights on how to cope with death, ex- ile, the people around us, the whims of the emperor, fear, illness, and much more.

The Simple Beauty of the Unexpected
A Natural Philosopher’s Quest for Trout and the Meaning of Everything

Marcelo Gleiser

“A personal and engaging tribute to nature from a world-famous theoretical physicist.

“The Simple Beauty of the Unexpected is an elegantly written, introspective, and thought-provoking meditation on growing up as someone curious about the universe. It’s a wonderful introduction to the hu- man side of science and the scientific side of being human.”—Sean Carroll, author of The Big Picture

The Index of Prohibited Books
Four Centuries of Struggle over Word and Image for the Greater Glory of God

Robin Vose

This book constitutes the first full study of the Catholic Church’s Index of Prohibited Books. It exam- ines the reasons behind the Church’s attempts to censor religious, scientific, and artistic works, and considers not only why this most sustained of cam- paigns failed, but what lessons it can teach us.

“Arendt’s most important philosophical work.”—New Republic

2018 380 p. 6 x 9

The Rabbit Between Us

Victor Menza

Through philosophy, history, education, art, and personal musing on everyday uncanny experiences, Menza reveals why people have long found rabbits our special kin and emblems of love. Gentle and political at once, this unique book will appeal to any intellectually curious reader.

Radical American Partisanship
Mapping Violent Hostility, Its Causes, and the Consequences for Democracy
Nathan P. Kalmoe and Lilliana Mason
“This provocative book by two of political science’s rising stars asks readers to consider what only recently would have seemed implausible. Is American democracy on the brink? Will the kind of political violence that most Americans connect to remote outposts in other parts of the world become a feature of our own deeply polarized political system? Readers will find themselves deeply unsettled by Kalmoe and Mason’s evidence and conclusions.” —Marc J. Hetherington, University of North Carolina–Chapel Hill
2022 224 p. 6 x 9 45 line drawings, 7 tables

Your Price: $15.75

Democratize Work
The Case for Reorganizing the Economy
Isabelle Ferreras, Julie Battilana, and Dominique Médé
“A cornerstone for building a fairer and more inclusive society. A must-read.”—Thomas Piketty
“This book powerfully makes the case that democracy cannot be limited to political institutions but also belongs in the workplace. As technology and a global pandemic are radically remaking our relations at work, this book offers desperately needed guidance for achieving a more just and inclusive economic system. Imaginative, empirically informed, and motivated by a profound humanity, this is a normative social science at its best.” —Debra Satz, Stanford University

When Freedom Speaks
The Boundaries and the Boundlessness of Our First Amendment Right
Lynn Greenky
“Lynn Greenky offers a spirited and engaging examination of the individuals, groups, and movements that have advanced free speech protections by standing up and speaking out. When Freedom Speaks is an accessible guide to the past, present, and future of free speech in the United States.” —David Cole, National Legal Director, ACLU
2022 248 p. 6 x 9

Deep South
A Social Anthropological Study of Caste and Class
Allison Davis, Burleigh B. Gardner, and Mary R. Gardner
First published in 1941, Deep South is a landmark work of anthropology. Living undercover in Depression-era Mississippi, groundbreaking Black scholar Allison Davis and his co-authors delivered an unprecedented examination of how race shaped nearly every aspect of twentieth-century American life. This reissue of the 1965 abridged edition features a new foreword from Pulitzer Prize winner Isabel Wilkerson.

Hope and Fear
Modern Myths, Conspiracy Theories and Pseudo History
Ronald H. Fritze
“The book traces a common link among fans of freaky fantasies, one that stretches from the Nazi cult of the supernatural, through alien-abduction conspiracists, and up to the COVID-19 deniers and QAnon embracers of our own mottled age.” —Independent

Democracy in the Time of Coronavirus
Danielle Allen
“In this stirring manifesto, renowned political theorist Allen argues that the United States’ woeful response to the COVID-19 pandemic must serve as a wake-up call for Americans to rebuild their public health infrastructure and renew their constitutional democracy.” —Foreign Affairs
2022 128 p. 5 1/2 x 8 1/4 8 line drawings, 3 tables

Race at the Top
Asian Americans and Whites in Pursuit of the American Dream in Suburban Schools
Natasha Warikoo
“In communities across the country, white and Asian parents argue over whose style of parenting is naturally better. Rather than consider such either/or questions, Warikoo effectively demonstrates that each group is making strategic choices that best advance their own children. As she passionately writes, the real argument should be how to support the children being left behind.”—Pawan Dhingra, Amherst College

“An absorbing work of ethnography ... that looks at the complex power and social dynamics at work in a system where success seems both scarce and an absolute imperative. Strikes a nice balance between academic and popular audiences.”—Chicago Tribune

2022 240 p. 6 x 9 4 tables

Cancel Wars
How Universities Can Foster Free Speech, Promote Inclusion, and Renew Democracy
Sigal R. Ben-Porath
“In Cancel Wars, Sigal R. Ben-Porath offers an insightful, original, and powerful analysis of how colleges, universities, and lower schools must play an ever-more central role in fostering a free and open educational process in order to redress the increasing polarization that has seriously damaged our democracy. This is a must-read for anyone concerned with these profoundly important issues.”—Geoffrey R. Stone, University of Chicago

2023 208 p. 5 1/2 x 8 1/4

The Successful TA
A Practical Approach to Effective Teaching
Kathy Nomme and Carol Pollock
Nomme and Pollock draw on decades of experience in teaching and TA training to offer practical advice on interacting with course instructors, dealing with nerves and anxiety, preparing for the first session, supporting student learning, developing learning exercises, engaging students with diverse needs and backgrounds, using technology in the classroom, and assessing student work.

Life and Research
A Survival Guide for Early-Career Biomedical Scientists
Paris H. Grey and David G. Oppenheimer
“Part survival guide and part pep-talk, Life and Research should be included in every welcome package for scientists joining a new lab or research program. Grey and Oppenheimer have created a portable version of the ideal mentor—helpful, honest, and compassionate.”—Susanna Harris, Founder and Chair of PhD Balance

2022 264 p. 6 x 9

How Schools Really Matter
Why Our Assumption about Schools and Inequality Is Mostly Wrong
Douglas B. Downey
“It’s not often that a publication changes the way we think the world works. Communicated in remarkably clear prose, Downey’s incisive empirically based analysis reveals that inequality increases significantly when children are out of, not while they are in, school.”—William Julius Wilson, Harvard University

2020 176 p. 5 1/4 x 8 1/4 12 figures
Hayek
A Life, 1899–1950
Bruce Caldwell and Hansjoerg Klausinger
“Admirers and opponents of Hayek alike will find much to savor in this deeply researched, sweeping biography. Even readers who well know Hayek and his times will be enlightened and enriched.”—Jennifer Burns, author of Goddess of the Market: Ayn Rand and the American Right
“A magnificent achievement. Caldwell and Klausinger bring Hayek alive; they also bring his world alive. This is riveting reading, taken as biography, and it’s much more than that. It casts a bright new light on Hayek’s era, and on our own.”—Cass R. Sunstein, coauthor of Nudge: Improving Decisions about Health, Wealth, and Happiness

The Federal Reserve
A New History
Robert L. Hetzel
“Hetzel’s book skillfully traces out the Fed’s uneven history. He carefully identifies and explains the reasons for the Fed’s major failures and successes and he covers the most recent episodes—the financial crisis, Great Recession, and the COVID-19 crisis—in great detail. Hetzel’s own intellectual framework provides valuable nuances, resulting in a unified view of Fed policy, before and after 1980, with reference to a single model.”—Peter Ireland, Boston College

Invisible China
How the Urban-Rural Divide Threatens China’s Rise
Scott Rozelle and Natalie Hell
“The biggest obstacle to China’s development is that rural children—two-thirds of the total—do terribly in school, argues this stunningly researched book. Many are malnourished, lack reading glasses or suffer from energy-sapping intestinal worms. If these basic problems are not fixed, say the authors, China will struggle to reach its goal of broad prosperity.”—Economist
